FLG Games from Around the World

We implement games when working with children and adolescents as an important element in our global FLG network. We always make it our main goal to create a positive, motivating, and trusting environment that has a positive effect not only for the groups participating in the project, but also for the learning process. This module will present various games from around the world that all of the FLG partner organizations put together. The games in this module have been sorted into five categories to create a clear overview. The categories are as follows: ice breaker games, call and response games, meet and greet games, interaction games/team building exercises, and trust games.

These games can be utilized in various ways: as point of departure for a new unit, as a reenergizing activity during a workshop, or as an integral part of a lesson plan. The games in this module can also be implemented to create a first playful point of entry for the topic of children's rights. You can find ideas for implementing the various games in the individual descriptions below.
